"This Gravy is Bootylicous"

STILL SEEKING LORRIE BEYL PHOTOS "Most Photos Still Under Subpoena"

Faribault (AP) Exhaustive searches of all criminal databases, FBI file cabinets and disciplinary reports from the Faribault School system have one thing in common: no photos of our dear sweet Lorrie (McMichael) Beyl. "It is the strangest thing," said U.S. Marshall Ken Peters, "You start dropping her name and asking the whereabouts of some of her old pictures and bad things start happening."

After spending a day asking clerks about Lorrie, Peters drove home to find his house ransacked, his other car torched, all his shrubs hacked out at their roots and a large chalk drawing of a dog's head in the driveway. "An expert has identified it a Hungarian Pointer, but I know there is much more to the story."

Attempts to find photos of Lorrie on the internet continue to come up empty: a search of the name "Lorrie (nee McMichael) Beyl" only brings up websites dedicated to her beauty with long, rambling love letters from the Marine Corps and all the Wisconsin National Guard units (but no pictures). "She is one mysterious woman," concluded Kenny Peters. "Quite mysterious."

Janer's House for Sale Again

"Spinning Noise Keeping Maple Lawn Neighborhood Awake All Night"

(West End) Chez Janer is back on the market and the folks are "only" asking for $125,000 to own the little piece of west end history. Some of the attributes detailed on the listing include the Mike Lohrmann "Southern Comfort Window Well and Vomitorium (see star)," "The Spookiest Basement in the World" and the actual kitchen that Liz gave Mike his first pierced ear back in 1977. Insiders say the Lohrmann piercing area is the main reason for the inflated price, especially the area "in which Mike actually passed out."

"That price also explains the spinning noise at Maple Lawn," said caretaker Al Albrecht. "Once the 'For Sale' sign went up on Franklin, we started getting that spinning sound. I figured it was the Civil Defense alarm system test but then I figured out it wasn't the first Wednesday of the month." When asked how he finally connected the two issues, "Oh, when I heard that someone wanted to buy Jane's old house for one hundred and twenty-five grand, I figured that was her spinning in her grave. But then I realized that the owner also gets the 'Liz Sears Make-out Driveway' and the 'Jeff Sears Air Conditioner Message Board,' I started to think that was a good deal."
