

Top 10 Reasons We're Back!

- 1 I missed Joanie's birthday
- 2 Have new batch of lies waiting for publication
- 3 Uncle Bing digs it
- 4 I miss Mike's girl-like giggling sounds
- 5 Winona subscribers threatening to sue
- 6 Tired of questions about "When is it coming?"
- 7 Wondering how it will fly on the Internet
- 8 More Aunt Lorraine stories
- 9 Little Billy Miller barely remembers them
- 10 Fiction can now beat facts!

Mom's Newsletter can be found at:
www.clydepark.com

"Mike Lohrmann can sure sing"

Mom's Newsletter

"It is always something"

Newsletter Returns As Key Federal Witness Disappears

By Red Ruffensore

After a three-year absence from the newsstands, Mom's Newsletter has returned to crack wise on a variety of family activities. Bouyed by the loss of the key Government witnesses, including three in the same afternoon, the U.S. Marshall has declared the case against the Newsletter : "It's over...for now."

Aunt Lorraine Speaks Out

"It's about time," crowed the former Miss Shieldsville, "I need to read all the family news and this sabbatical bit the big one." Family insiders agree that the loss of the Newsletter was significant, "We were lacking exciting stories," said (Little) Billy Miller, "and I was getting tired about reading the old stories about when was stationed in Kenyon."

Mike Dapper Jealous

"I have been re-reading the stories about the Miller/Sears clan and I finally get some new news about Joanie Miller," sighed the rapidly aging almost-in-law. "I represent a growing community of non-relatives that are curious about the family. I mean, I can read about you folks in in the paper but I need to get the story behind the story."

Sabbatical My Ass

"It's not like the kid works hard," said Uncle Bing. "And Joanie tells me that he sits on his big ass and types on a computer like a dork, not exactly outside work, if you get my drift."

Uncle Bing concludes, "When I was his age, I was running two major bootlegging operations as well as having a half a dozen judges in my back pocket, like Mark."

So, What is New? Mom's Newsletter Catches Up

By Roger Bongers

A lot like a reunion of a television show (Editor's Note: Different Strokes?), we catch up with our favorite relatives and see what is new:

Ellen: "I have been busier than a well-digger's...no, that's not it. A popcorn fart? No, that's not right, John! What am I busier than?"

Liz: "Oh, what day is it? Uh, the last three years have been a blur. I received Doctorates in both Barneyology and Headliceology."

Joanie: "I lost one hundred and eighty pounds of ugly fat."

Little Billy Miller: "I have been trying to figure out my goofy cousin Jeff and have decided that he is just an odd sonofabitch."

Aunt Lorraine: "Don't go and get me started or you are going to have to rename this rag 'Mom's Encylopedia.'"

Mike: "I have been working and concentrating on my love of dance. Oh, and if anyone wants a duck, make it yourself."

John McGrory: "I have learned to read since the last Newsletter and am looking forward to scouring the paper for dirty words like 'pecker' and 'booby.'"

Jack Miller: "It's about damn time another one of these come out, I just got done reading the last ninety-five of them. We need more stories about Guam."