Mike Lohrmann Large-Head Sculpture Opened

Rave Reviews from Uptown Passers-By: Next Up Don Smith

(Minneapolis) "It's a beauty: the head watches as you wander by," said metro gadfly Dixie Drager-Clooney. "I was clubbing in Uptown last week and I saw the Mom's Newsletter stretch limousines at the opening and wandered over to see all the commotion. They captured Mike's head in a classy but ironically understated way. George and I are both very impressed."

City spokesperson Matt Brumble stated that "this would be the first of several sculptures which will be introduced this summer. The next one will be a bleached stone sculpture of Don Smith in which his forehead space will be highlighted and possibly rented out for traffic updates." Other names rumored to be included in the Minneapolis park include a Mark Fielding (1988 version), Matt Schnackenberg (with hat) and perhaps a current-day Colin Shellum. "The egg shape of Colin's head provides a counterbalance to the more rectangular offerings of Lohrmann, Schnackenberg, Fielding and of course, the king of the right angle head, Al Monroe," said Brumble. "It will be a great fall season."

Joanie and Judy Do Europe: London, Paris and Vatican City

The Daughters of Cardinal Bing See the Sights

(Holy See) Well, if someone had told the Newsletter that Judy and Joanie were just back from Europe, we would have sent that story tip to the "Did Not See That Coming" department. But thanks to our friends at the TSA, it was confirmed the two gallivanted around Europe doing whatever caught their fancy.

"We called up a few of Dad's cardinal buddies," said Judy. "All we said was 'Bing Miller' and we were surrounded by more red hats and orbs than you could shake a scepter at." Joanie agreed and added, "We hit the touristy places in London and Paris but Vatican City was targeted to be our prime party headquarters because Dad loved coming over to see all his pals." When asked what else they did in Rome, Joanie said,

"Hey, confession is over pal...next time subscribe to my Twitter handle "Cecilia57" and "#24hourpapalpeople."

Mom's Newsletter News and Inside Joke Feed: Restraining order was lifted at the end of June on the Newsletter (sorry Dapper...we are back in business), Andy Ulseth got married, Alec Noll has joined the silent service (ironically the only service branch his mother or grandmother would have NOT thrived), Sarah Barnett graduated from P.A. school and is getting married, Cindi Ramm prefers to be called "The Cindi" in all written correspondence, Kevin Thar has trademarked the name "Dave Burrows™" as a new men's cologne, Katie Barnett is getting married, JJ Monroe graduated and is headed for music school, Bob Barnett is selling his plasma, John McGrory is taking dating advice from Jim Mylrea and Tom Ayre so his social life is pretty much set in dull stone.
