

July 2003

MOM'S Newsletter

"Happy Birthday to Ellie Baby and Uncle Bing"

Volume XVI, Number 7

Andy KO's Dean in Round 2

New Grandfather Sees Birdies, Stars and Grads

The bell had barely rung to begin round two when the young Andy "Knock Knock" Lohrmann sent his rapidly aging father, Dean "Who's There?" Lohrmann, to the canvas with a vicious left hook during the opening ceremonies of the Heather Lohrmann graduation party.

Wishing to squeeze in the grudge match before his mother got there, Dean unwisely strapped on the gloves to take on his son in the yet-to-be-invented backyard sport of trampoline boxing. Boxing judges, led by ring veterans John McKee and Bing Miller, had the younger Lohrmann slightly ahead on points prior to the special delivery of the concussive knockout blow. The knockout punch caught the cute but rapidly aging Grandfather flat footed and sent him careening into the annals of family legend. The forty-year grandfather was counted out by the crowd while recent grad (and scholarship award winner) Heather behaved herself by welcoming her guests and applying smelling salts to her father. "I am so proud of my accomplishments," said the 2003 graduate as she checked her father's eyes for both reaction to light and general movement. "This day means a lot to me because I think I finally know what I want to be in college: a paramedic."

After apparently coming back to consciousness, Dean (seen above seconds before getting clocked) was asked about his thoughts about both the fight and Heather's graduation. He paused, blinked his glassed-over eyes and said, "Tell Mom that Snoopy and Mike are outside and won't come in for lunch."

Summer Scoops...

Kudos to all-around good gal, Katie Barnett, newest graduate from Jefferson High School. She will be attending the University of Iowa and promises to "not to need any bail money for my entire freshman year." Little Billy Miller has been named one of People Magazine's 25 Most Eligible Bachelors much to the dismay of his great-grandchild demanding Grandmother...Ellen McKee is secretly dropping hints about a new dog...Mary McKee has broken off her passionate relationship with Stan Hussen (see May 2003 issue) and is planning on "rekindling with an old boyfriend." Uncle Bing finds the Iraqi fugitive playing card deck "a helluva thing" and thinks he saw the nine of hearts at Wal-Mart last Wednesday or Thursday morning.

"Mike Lohrmann Mike Lohrmann, Mike Lohrmann. Is that all you can talk about?"