Distinct Image of Don (King) Smith Appears on Toast “Divine Intervention Meets Crunchy, Buttery Taste”

Duseks' Bakery (Faribault Daily News) Audible, high-pitched screams were heard coming out of the Central Avenue institution recently when, during the weekly crouton-making exercise, the image of Don “King” Smith was seen clearly on one of the pieces of toast.

The slice of garlic buttered toast was only a few moments away from the sharp reciprocating blades of the bakery's cutting machine when one of the lovely young baking assistants saw Don's face looking up at her through the floury haze. “It was like seeing a movie star,” crowed the corn-fed co-ed, “Well, it was more like seeing a rapidly-aging movie star who I kind of recognized but wasn't real sure of their name. Either way, it was kind of cool thing for a Friday.”

The toast was then rushed to the French Church and presented to the local papal authority. After a few hours, Monsignor Gerald “Fuzzy” Vernon stated, “We are treating this as a miracle of the first order,” and “while this is not an official ‘holy image’ such as the famous Apparition of Fatima or something worthy enough to wake someone up at Vatican, we realize we have an ongoing responsibility to do what's right in our parish. But when I think about it, I might give all the guys in St. Paul a call to let them know we are still rocking it down here, Rice County style.”

The toast was on display in the bakery's front window for the entire weekend and several individuals were seen taking pictures of the images after hours. While these folks were assumed to be either relatives of Don or advance scouts for America's Most Wanted, the excitement was easily managed by the existing police force with no calls for crowd control or assistance recorded by the 911 Dispatcher on duty. Unfortunately, the event was brought to an end when the toast was mistakenly thrown away by the weekday cleaning crew. “The toast was all smelly and wrinkly,” said cleaner Russ Lambert. “I tossed it out and went back cleaning the ovens. No one had told me to keep it and more I hear it the smelly and wrinkly part, I have made up my own joke. Do you want to hear it?”

June Events Calendar

- Super-delegate Kevin Thar is planning a news conference to announce his preference for the upcoming election. However, the trouble is the election is for the Michigan Origami Association.
- Jenny Ayre is a now college graduate. “I have a degree but still am very frightened of clowns.”
- Little (Billy) Miller is doing just fine but misses the sweet summery days of regional dance theater.
- Joanie Boysen is the hardest working women in nursing business. By a mile.
- Kentuckian Mark Fielding has left the MNL Reader Council due to philosophical differences. “The council refuses to publish my self- portraits as they are ‘troubled with the graphic detail.’”
