

MOM'S Newsletter

"It's May 2005....About Damn Time"

Volume XVIII, Number 5

May 2005

New Miller/McMichael Art Gallery Opens

Crowds Gather and Demand "More Cheesecake"

Mall of America (AP) A bold new retail strategy has just opened up at the Mall of America specializing in photos of the Miller/McMichael women. "It's a beauty," said Mark O'Brien. "It is like Sistine Chapel of Babes."

Photos of Lorrie (nee McMichael) Beyl and Joanie (nee Miller) Boysen have been long prized possessions with federally incarcerated convicts but the hard-to-find Traci (nee McMichael) Zeman are considered the true, rare jewels of this new collection. "A timeless beauty" said an unidentified shopper, "I might have to buy them all."

Art critics are also unanimous in their praise of the new collection. "It captures the beauty of several generations as well as providing a great, new gift category." Crowds have been extremely strong during the first week's opening with sales split evenly between the portraits and gift items. "Both the Vizsla back scratchers and Tom Kuhlman bobble heads have sold out but we expect new shipments next week," said Store Manager Allyn Jones. "However, the Jeff Sears Melon Ballers are gathering dust....I think the scoop size is too big."

Spring Rumors and Innuendos

John McGrory was forced to give up the Winona Schools "Good Sport Award" after an anonymous phone call to the awards committee ratted him out for NOT shoveling the sidewalk once during the winter, per his mother's orders. "I don't know who dropped the dime on me but I will find out."

Maggie Sears will be attending the University of Iowa this fall. Upon hearing the announcement, thousands of young men have changed their college plans and have headed south to enroll at Iowa City.

Andy McGrory has won the "Good Sport Award" as result of the original winner's disqualification. "I am honored and humbled to have won the award," said Andy at the press conference, "Excuse me, I have to go home now and see if my mother needs any help with the yard work."

Late Breaking Additions: Joan (nee Carver) Rhode gets new tattoo, Phil Rutman admits to "loving the Minnesota Twins," Ellen goes dog shopping, Mike Lohrmann perfects new girl-like laugh and old photos of Dean and Mopsie.