

Mom's Newsletter

CALLING ALL RELATIVES!

This is an open letter from Aunt Lorraine to all relatives:

"All right...my ass is now officially tired because of the lack of high-quality Faribault visitors. I want to start seeing more of my grandchildren (even Billy), daughters, nieces and all levels of cousins. I also want to see people over here, eating food (that you bring with you) and drinking my coffee.

So, get off your dead butts and head to Faribault for some quality family time."

- ♥Lorraine

"Hurricane Charlie" McGrory Settles Lawsuit with NOAA and the National Weather Service

"Mr. Charles McGrory is finally satisfied the settlement," stated an obviously relieved Attorney General John Ashcroft. "Upon review, the Justice Department has resolved McGrory v. USA. We are proud to announce the settlement with the National Weather Service and National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAH) for illegally using the trademark 'Hurricane Charley® [sic.]' without Mr. Charles McGrory's express and written permission." "The first names are different," fumed prosecuting attorney Harold Organs who stood outside the Justice Department, "anyone can see that but the Attorney General is the boss. What he says around the DOJ, goes."

Legal insiders stated the volumes of photographic evidence combined with hundreds of individual interviews forced Mr. Ashcroft settle this claim as soon as possible. "Mr. McGrory has been using that moniker for his entire life," said anonymous family members and there are reams of evidence would support this." The family member presented several dozen photos (see sample below) demonstrating Mr. McGrory's "cyclonic personality®" and said, "There are hundreds of these in the court briefs."

"You don't have to tell me that," stated Aunt Ellen McKee. "That kid put me in a death grip at the holiday table last year which caused me to reference several of his more endearing traits." When asked if she would testify in favor of the plaintiff, she said, "Hell yes I will. I have been calling that kid 'Hurricane Charlie' for years."

Exhibit R94: Hurricane Charlie in action at a get-together in Winona

"He isn't nearly as destructive as the hurricane that hit Florida," said older brother Andrew Jeffrey McGrory. "I mean a few pillows or a boring 'Blues Clues' tape gets tossed once in awhile but there hasn't been any broken bones as a result of his playfulness; like other brothers I know." The older McGrory brother was not available to the Newsletter but sent a message through his agent that "he was no way involved in any injurious behavior and was only guilty of 'poor friendships with known bullies.'"

The settlement with the National Weather Service and NOAA was closely guarded but representatives from Nabisco have confirmed several truckloads of Oreos are making their way to the Winona area with a planned monthly (and lifetime) delivery of significant amounts of cookies to resolve a legal matter."