

Volume 29, Number 8 "Embrace September as Summer Bids Adieu" September 2016

The National Geographic Returns "This Is One Fascinating Family..."

(Faribault) Groups of photographers and editors arrived at the Rice County International Airport to do yet another article about the Miller Family. "I thought the last article about the cultural nightlife of Shieldsville was a little derivative," said family insider David Liverseed. "But the media never seems to leave us alone, since the Kennedy and Dapper family intrigue and rumors have gotten to be so 'old news.'"

Long viewed as cultural icons, the Miller family have kept themselves in the Rice County public eye for decades by establishing themselves as trendsetters in areas of literature, fashion, law enforcement, interstate gambling, creative loan practices, grocery retail and most recently, poultry husbandry. "That cute kid with the chicken is the reason we are here," said senior editor Derek Sayres. "That stuff that gets this rag flying off newsstands."

The main articles in the September issue include an in-depth debate on Broasted™ chicken, thank you card etiquette, the nuances of family card games, the entire joke catalog of Bing Miller, Guam family secrets, the "French Lake incident," the venial sin debate, Christmas rabbit recipes, a salute to the MNL Hall of Fame husbands, Lohrmann anagrams and related word-find games that focus on light entertainment and words that rhyme with boobies. The issue will be on the national newsstands in late October and a book on tape available by the holiday shopping season and online at momnewsletter.com.

"It will be a doozy," said Joan Horsman. "A real doozy."

Phil Rutman Has Had Enough Asks For, Receives MNL Endorsement for President

(Kenosha) "This is my sad face," said industry leader Phil Rutman. "I hate my sad face but I have had enough with this election and it is time I throw my hat into the ring for President." Insiders have been whispering his name for several months but he was considered a pipe dream due to his busy life, stunning wife and his moderately amusing daughters. But as he said, "these two putzes are absolutely killing me."

Long viewed as the perfect combination of wisdom, insight, good looks, fiscal responsibility, golf skills, dog training expertise, child discipline and wit. Phil floated a few Vice-Presidential names at a recent town hall. "The problem is my top picks are just too good-looking. Bob Barnett... Marc Lawrence...Tom Ayre are all just pretty boys, and I may need a Western state geographic balance or god forbid, a Purdue graduate."

Reports say he is entertaining a Winona gal as a VP choice and told the FBI should not to "dig too hard" in regard to any criminal histories. "So, I have a few friends in southern Minnesota, said Phil, "Sue me."

Who Are Our Subscribers Reading?

- Chicks Dig Schematics (John McGrory)
- Know Your Rashes (Curt Breeding)
- What Smells Like Bacon? (Derek Sayres)
- Lefty Loosey, Righty Tightly (Cindi Ramm)
- Bongo Drums for Dummies (Don Smith)
- The Loin King (Lorrie Beyl)